

Mayor of Oak Lawn Given Diamond Star

Oak Lawn was given a wonderful entertainment by the Chamber of Commerce Monday evening March 1st in the School auditorium.

The entertainment was arranged by Mr. Chas. J. Patrick and Meryl (Big Boy) Yeagle of Station W. B. C. N. A microphone was set upon the stage and it was somewhat similar to the ones used in broadcasting rooms. Each entertainer did his stunt as if he were in a regular broadcasting station before a microphone.

The following were the numbers and entertainers: Donovan and Matts, W. M. B. B. Stein Trio, Song and dance, K. Y. W. Big Boy Yeagle, W. B. C. N. Brown's Trio, W. M. A. Q. Eddie Dempsey, W. B. C. N. Herbie Schmidt, and Johnny Special W. B. C. N. Bennie Allen, Leo Feist Music Company, Tubby Gowan, W. E. B. H. Chas. Patrick, LaVerne Ehrat, Song and dance from Oak Lawn, Mrs. Louise Brown, W. M. A. Q. Tenor Banjo Players from W. E. B. H. and also two guitar players from K. Y. W. and several more singers.

Among the notable speakers were Judge Savage, Chas. Barrett, John Jaranowski, Arthur Huebsch and Wm. H. Propper and last but not least, our good friend Gene Oliver.

A very interesting part of the program was enjoyed when Mr. Oliver spoke and announced that he had been asked to perform a wonderful part. Mayor Emery was called to the platform to assist in the part and thereupon Mr. Oliver in well chosen words presented to Mayor Emery, in behalf of the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce, a beautiful diamond star. Mr. Emery has done for "The City of Progress", a most beautiful 18 carat gold star with the seal of Oak Lawn engraved on it and a large diamond set in the center of the seal.

Surprise had so overpowered the Mayor that words were impossible, but in his closing address he told how much he appreciated the gift and the spirit that prompted it and he promised faithfully he would never disgrace that Star as long as he lived.

Oak Lawn is surely to be congratulated upon the good fortune of having such a man as Emery for mayor and it was a fine spirit in the Oak Lawn people to show their appreciation of a good man while that man is alive to enjoy it. Much better than a blanket of roses when he is dead.

About 400 were present and all had a splendid time, this being the greatest affair to come to Oak Lawn for many a day and the Chamber of Commerce is to be praised for it.

Mokena Couple Surprised on 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Hirsch have traveled life's pathway together for a quarter of a century and last Saturday night they were tendered a big surprise party in the St. Mary's hall in honor of the event. The honored couple had been invited to the home of their son Carl on the old Hirsch farm and both were attired in their wedding clothes. Mrs. Hirsch wearing the dress and veil she was married in 20 years ago.

Ona E. McGovney took the couple in his car but instead of driving to the Hirsch farm he drove to the hall, where Mr. and Mrs. Hirsch were greatly surprised when they entered and found a host of friends to greet them.

The Wachter Orchestra furnished music for the occasion. Dancing was the chief amusement.

A sumptuous wedding supper was served, a huge wedding cake gracing the center of the table. Mr. and Mrs. Hirsch received many beautiful gifts of silver.

ILLINOIS BELL TEL. CO. HAS NEW BILLING SYSTEM

The Illinois Bell Telephone Company through J. F. Whallon Commercial Manager, has announced that a new billing plan will be introduced in the Suburban territory, beginning April 1st.

The new plan is known as "Rotation Billing" and means that instead of all Suburban subscribers' bills going out on the first of the month, the billing will be divided into six equal groups, each group of bills being mailed shortly after their date.

The dates of the bills in the six groups will be the first, sixth, eleventh, sixteenth, twenty-first and twenty-sixth.

Mr. Whallon stated that because the new billing plan permits of spreading the work of preparing bills throughout the month, it will be possible for the telephone company to give to their patrons better billing and counter service. The new billing plan also gives the subscriber a more up to date bill. The toll charges on each bill will include items up to the date of the bill instead of such items appearing on bills only up to the 15th of the preceding month, as has been the practice.

According to the new plan, telephone subscribers in the Mokena Exchange will receive their bills dated the first of each month.

In starting the new plan, it will be necessary for the Telephone Company to send two bills during the month of March to those patrons whose bills will be dated, in the future, the sixteenth and twenty-first. Likewise, it will also be necessary, during the transition from the present method of billing to the new plan of billing, to include toll and service charges for periods varying from 15 to 55 days in length. However, after this transition has been completed, April bills will cover the regular periods, namely, the month preceding the date of the bill for toll items, and the month period beginning with the date of the bill for service charges.

Mr. Whallon said each patron will receive a notice with their March 1st bill and also with their next subsequent bill. This notice explains the plan and indicates the period covered by the charges on their bills in the future.

The employees of the Telephone Company have been schooled as to all details, and will be ready to answer questions regarding the new plan.

MOKENA TO A HAVE NEW SUBDIVISION

J. R. Bowen of Marley has purchased the former Mokena Mineral Springs farm from Mrs. John Gilmore, the past week. The property consists of 20 acres with buildings.

Mr. Bowen has announced that he is going to have the land laid out in lots and will open the Bowen subdivision this spring. He is going to have streets laid out and gravelled and cement sidewalks laid.

Mr. Bowen is going to move in the residence now occupied by Mrs. Gilmore, who will vacate about July 1st.

This new subdivision which is just on the south edge of the village, gives promise of being a boom for Mokena. Sale of lots and new homes will bring new residents to this village and materially aid in the upbuilding of Mokena.

Pressure Water Tank Explodes

Failure of a safety valve to work caused a terrific explosion on the farm run by Herman Oetjinn east of Tinley Park last Saturday afternoon when a big underground water pressure tank blew up. The tank was operated by an automatic pump but the failure of the safety valve to work caused the pump to keep on working after the danger point had been reached with the result that one end of a 30 foot long steel water pressure tank was torn out by the explosion and with it the frozen ground on top of it, leaving a hole deep enough to bury a car in. A solid concrete wall dividing tank from the cellar was also shattered by the upheaval. The Oetjinn's at first thought it was an earthquake when they felt the house being rocked by the explosion.

Pioneer Frankfort Twp. Resident Is Claimed by Death

Charlotte Hohenstein, nee Knapp, was born in Steinwenden, Bavaria, Germany, May 1, 1846.

When about 3 years old she came to this country with her parents who for a short time resided on a farm in the State of Ohio. From there they came to Illinois and settled on a farm in Will County. In the spring of 1864 she was united in marriage with Simon Hohenstein who preceded her in death at Mokena, April 2, 1912. This union was blessed with 12 children, one of whom, a daughter passed away at the age of 4 years.

During the first three years of her married life, she resided in the town of Green Garden and moved from there to the farm in Frankfort township where she resided until Nov. 1906, when she with her husband, who had been in poor health for sometime, moved to Mokena.

With love and kindness she devoted her time to the care of her husband, who was an invalid for 7 years. After his death she lived a lonely life in Mokena until Jan. 15, 1915, when death again called for a victim in the family, by taking the wife of her son Christ, leaving five small motherless children, the oldest being 8 years, and the youngest a few days old.

She felt the need of her help in this sad case and moved back to the farm to take up the burden of a mother and helped to rear up a second family of children. For about 3 years she has been failing in health and was unable to go to the house of worship which she always felt the need of, and missed very much.

Early last fall she gradually weakened and her condition became critical. For a long time she could not lie down and was forced to sit in an arm chair day and night, always contented with her lot in the hope and cheer of a better life to come which she felt she would enter before long.

During the last months of her illness when constant attention and care were necessary, her three daughters tenderly helped to make her as comfortable as possible. The death of Rev. Lambrecht (continued on back page)

Dr. Schussler also showed that proposed new route would give Joliet a straight airline paved route to Chicago. Much enthusiasm was manifested at this gathering and the new organization gives every promise of being a bunch of live wires and will undoubtedly accomplish important things for the benefit of all the communities concerned. Dr. Sherman Knox of Orland gave a rousing talk based on the Oak Lawn Booster Page printed in the News-Bulletin last week. He also pointed out the big future possibilities of the Southwest towns region. The Worth members expressed their interest in the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce to meet at Worth on Tuesday eve, March 16th and the invitation was accepted. A membership drive will next be in order and it is proposed to work up a membership of 2,000 from the territory in which the new organization functions.

Let us all be BOOSTERS for the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce and its projects.

SUIT AGAINST TINLEY SCHOOL DIRECTORS ENDS

Judge McEwin, sitting in the Circuit court of Chicago last Friday dismissed the two cases of Beck vs. the directors of school district No. 146 of Tinley Park. These two cases grew out of the action of the school directors, acting under the advice of their attorney Francis A. Harper, in refusing to pay various orders issued by the school directors when W. C. Van Wormer was attempting to run the affairs of the school. In a written statement, Attorney Harper gives the following history of both cases:

"On November 11, 1922, W. C. Van Wormer was elected a director of schools in this district in place of Philip Mager who had resigned. That was the beginning of trouble for the school. Van Wormer and Scheer controlled the Board, but they could not force nor coax Carl Goebel to vote with them, so they called and held meetings without notice to Goebel. At one of these illegal meetings they employed H. Frederick Beck, an architect of Harvey, Illinois, to draw plans and specifications for a new school and to superintend the erection thereof. By this time the voters of this district, with the exception of Dr. Scheer and a few others, had lost confidence in Van Wormer and would not support him in the selection of a new site for the school nor in voting him the money to build. On April 14, 1923 Mr. Wm. Maihoff defeated Van Wormer at the school election for director. In defiance of this vote of the people, Van Wormer and Scheer held a pretended meeting of the school directors on April 23rd and again on April 24th. They then pretended to enter into a contract with Beck, and they signed a pretended contract under which Beck would have been entitled to over $3,000 more. Acting for Mr. Maihoff and Mr. Goebel, I finally succeeded in getting possession of the books of the district and learned of these illegal acts and of the outstanding orders. I at once notified Fred Goebel, the school treasurer, not to honor these orders, and notified the Bremen State Bank not to pay the orders nor any checks issued on these orders. Pressure was brought to bear, and the Trustees of Schools urged that these orders be paid 'as we could not hope to win in Court.' Maihoff and Goebel 'stood pat' and Beck brought two suits against the School district, one on the $500 order and the other for $2,500 for breach of contract. Judge McEwin ruled that the meetings were illegal and that Beck could not hold the district on account of anything done at either of these meetings. I honestly believe that Van Wormer intended to make enough out of building that school to build

S. W. Starr Seeks Nomination As State Representative

Stephen W. Starr was born and raised at Clinton, Illinois, where he lived until after graduating from grammar and high school. After graduating from high school Mr. Starr entered the University of Illinois where he took up the studies of Law and Journalism. At the opening of the World War in 1917 he enlisted in the United States Marines and served over seas, seeing active service in the 5th Regiment U.S. Marines.

When the armistice was signed the 5th Regiment U. S. Marines, 2nd Division was sent into Germany and was among the last regiments to return to the United States. At the close of the war Mr. Starr took up advertising and was very successful, following this line of work for a number of years. In July, 1924 at the age of twenty-nine, he became connected with the Farmers Weekly Review at Joliet and since that time has made many friends through out the county including the city of Joliet.

By seeking the nomination for state representative Mr. Starr promises his best efforts and conscientious and honest representation of the people of the 41st Senatorial District. Lesson for March 7

JESUS WASHES THE DISCIPLES' FEET

LESSON TEXT—John 12:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—"The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many."—Matt. 20:28.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Loving Service of Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Loyal Service of Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Dignifies Loyal Service.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Spirit of Christianity Illustrated.

With this chapter we enter into the very holy of holies of the book, namely, the inner revelation of Christ to His disciples.

I. Jesus' Amazing Love for His Own (vv. 1-3). Jesus was fully conscious of what was upon Him. He knew that the cross with all its anguish was just before Him. He knew that His disciples would shamefully forsake Him within a few hours. He knew that one of that number would be the instrument in the hands of the devil in His betrayal. He knew that all things were in His hands—was fully conscious of His deity. He did not withdraw His love from them because of their weakness and the shameful failure which He knew would soon be made manifest. "He loved them to the end"—to the uttermost. True love does not consider circumstances or the shortcomings of the person loved.

II. Christ Washing His Disciples' Feet (vv. 4-11). This act is symbolic of His amazing love for His disciples. Jesus did not regard His hands too holy to do this menial service.

1. Steps in This Service (vv. 4, 5).
(1) He arose from supper. (2) Laid aside His garments. (3) Took a towel and girded Himself. (4) Poured water into a basin. (5) Washed His disciples' feet. (6) Wiped them with the towel wherewith He was girded.

These steps symbolize Christ's work of redemption. His rising from supper represents His rising from His place of enjoyment in the heavenly glory. His laying aside His garments is putting aside His vesture of majesty (Phil. 2:7, 8). His girding Himself is taking the form of a servant in the incarnation (Phil. 2:7). The water in the basin, His cleansing blood. His washing their feet, their sanctification by actual cleansing men through His Word (John 15:3; Eph. 5:26). His taking His garments again, His return to His place and position of glory (Luke 24:31).

2. Peter's Impetuous Ignorance (vv. 6, 9).

He goes from one extreme to the other. His failure to understand the significance of this service caused him to behave strangely.

3. The Significance of This Service to Those Who Participate in It (vv. 10-12).

(1) It is a Spiritual Cleansing (v. 8). Fellowship with Jesus is only possible as we are continuously cleansed from our sin. "He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet but is clean every whit" (v. 10). The cleansing here is not the washing of regeneration (Tit. 3:5), but that of sanctification (John 17:17). Even regenerate people need the continual cleansing of Christ's blood in order to have fellowship with Him. He that is regenerated—washed in the blood of Christ (symbolized by baptism) does not need a repetition of the act; he only needs the cleansing of sanctification symbolized by the washing of the feet. After regeneration, as we go through this world we are contaminated by its sin.

(2) A Badge of Brotherly Affection. This act showed His abandonment to the service of His own. This is a lesson that is much needed today. We need more and more the fullness of brotherly love. Only can true love be proved by the service it renders.

(3) A Proof of Humility.

This was a lesson much needed by the disciples and much needed by us all. They had just been disputing as to who should be the greatest in the Kingdom. Their selfish motive was expressing itself. Christ's action was a concrete expression of His Spirit.

(4) Equalization.

As they would thus stoop to serve each other in the name of Christ, there would be the sure destruction of caste among them. Such service in the spirit of Christ is the great leveler of humanity.

III. An Example for Us (vv. 12-17).

The disciples of the Lord are under obligation to do to each other as He did unto them. This obligation rests upon His Lordship (v. 14). All who call Him Lord in sincerity will obey Him.

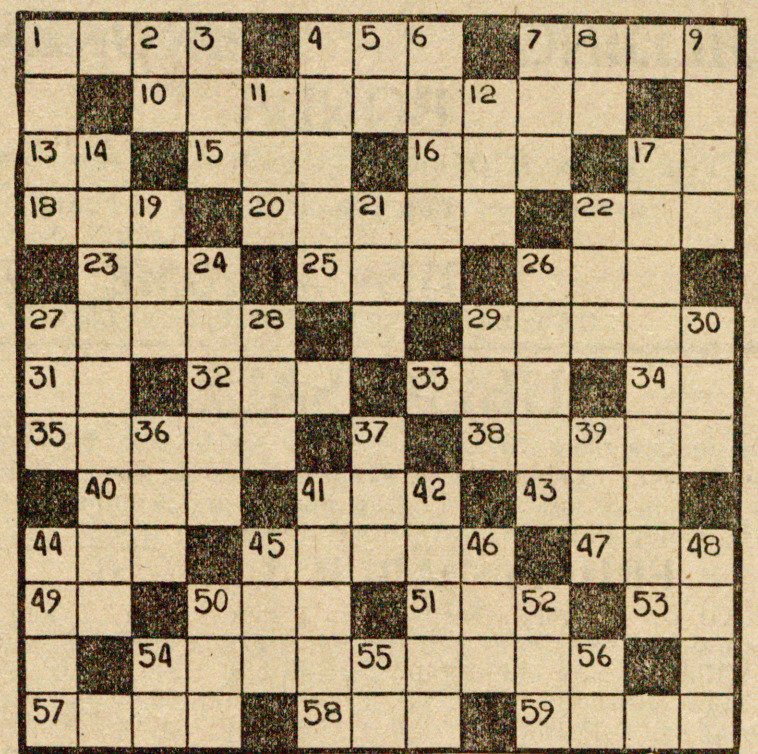

God's Way

God works in a mysterious way in grace as well as in nature, concealing His operations under an imperceptible succession of events, and thus keeps us always in the darkness of faith.—Fenelon.

Unites and Stills the Soul

Let the current of your being set toward God, then your life will be filled and calmed by one master-passion which unites and stills the soul.—Alex. and MacLaren.

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Songs of Troubadours

There were several kinds of songs sung by the troubadours—the canzonet, or love song; serenade, or evening song; aubade, or morning song; servante in praise of patrons, roundelay, or song with refrain or chorus; dance song accompanying the round dance, and the pastourelle, treating of Arcadian love.

Shaft Would Have Value

It is strange that an expedition into the earth's interior has never been seriously attempted. If we could sink a shaft only twelve miles into the ground we might strike all the coal and oil that would be needed in millions of years. In all likelihood we should find radium, gold, silver, diamonds, and other gems of untold wealth, as well as wonderful new metals and fresh sources of energy.—Exchange.

MARLEY

The young people's society of the Marley church will present a moving picture at the church on Friday evening March 12th, entitled, "Dream Street" by D.W. Griffith.
Mr. Glen Peterson will accompany the picture with No. 1 Radio music.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bostrum entertained a few friends and relatives in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary Tuesday evening at their home.

Mrs. Glen Peterson is suffering from an attack of grippe at her home east of Marley.

Mrs. C. F. Haley who has been quite ill at her home in Marley, is recovering.

Mrs. Fred Lauffer who has been ill for several weeks with an attack of la grippe, is slowly improving.

The farmers in this vicinity are having their cows tested for tuberculosis. Quite a number of animals are found to be afflicted with the dread disease.

Man and the Flowers.

The fragrance of plants is not for man's pleasure; it is a means of attracting insects to fertilize them. The object of many present-day florists is to improve a flower in its coloring, size and substance—in short to "paint the lily." They cannot improve the fragrance, which is perhaps the reason they seem to care so little for its disappearance under their handling.—Exchange.

Metal Track's Advantage

It has been shown that a horse can draw one and two-thirds times as much of a load on a metal track as on a good asphalt surface, five times as much as on cobblestone paving and about twenty times the load it can pull on an ordinary mud road.

Beginning of Cricket

There are some evidences of a similar game having been played in the fourteenth century, but it is probable that cricket was not known until some time in the sixteenth century.

place Sunday afternoon Feb. 21st at 2 o'clock in the home of Mr.
and Mrs. Geo. M. Wannemacher when their daughter, Pauline became the bride of Carl Walter, son of Mrs. Minnie Walter of Roseland, Ill.

Promptly at the appointed hour the bridal party took their place in the living room where Rev. D. C.
Hennig, pastor of Mokena Lutheran church united them in marriage.

They were attended by Miss Alice Schilling and Fred Wannemacher.

The bride wore a gown of white canton crepe and a corsage bouquet of white roses while Miss Schilling wore pink canton crepe and pink roses. A wedding dinner was served to immediate families.

Mr. and Mrs. Walters went on a short wedding trip and will next week go to housekeeping on the Jacob Mager farm.

bought the farm of Herman Lorenz occupied by J. R. Butler and pink and white decorations. A pretty miniature bride with veil small envelope was found at each place and when the guests were bidden by Miss Cooper to open and

MOKENA M. E. CHURCH
Glen T. Beaty, Pastor.

Sunday school at 10:30 A.M.
Evening worship at 7 o'clock.

The congregation enjoyed a pleasant informal service with Mr.
Alphonza Mendoza last Sunday evening. Mr. Mendoza sang some of our old gospel hymns in both Spanish and English. So sincere was his singing, that we were able to feel a message even from the words of the Spanish which we could not understand. The young Mexican also talked for a few moments about Mexican traditions and customs. Mr. Mendoza appreciated the hearty response and welcome accorded him by the large group of listeners. He has accepted our invitation to come back in the near future, when he will perhaps take the entire service.

Mr. Beaty will preach a sermon on "The Good Samaritan" next Sunday evening.

There will be an official board meeting next Sunday evening immediately after the service. All board members should make a special effort to be at this meeting.

The Ladies Aid Society will meet with Mrs. John Gilmore next Thursday afternoon. The ladies invite you.

Word has been received that our former pastor, Rev. A. Ray Man-gus has been slightly ill. He has found it necessary to rest from his Sunday labors for a few weeks. He is still in school, however, and we hope that with the rest he will rapidly improve.

ST. JOHN EVAN. CHURCH

W. J. Cramer, Minister.

Sunday school at 9:30. All teachers and pupils are urged to be on time. The Airship Flight around the world started last Sunday with an attendance of 103. A much larger attendance is expected Sunday morning. The new Adult class was organized last Sunday morning and has joined the Airship Flight around the world. The by the losing classes to the victorious class. Join now and help increase the attendance. We shall greet the newcomers with a smile

Sunday morning. Watch us grow!
Grow with us!

Morning worship at 10:30. The sermon will be preached in the German language. The topic will be "Three Offenses". Come and hear the sermon if you are familiar with the German language. The Pastor will demonstrate the fact of how people love the dark things of the world and how truth is hate.

Evening service at 7:45. Service will be conducted in the American language. You are cordially invited to a powerful sermon: The Pillars of the earth. If you are excited to know the vital needs of to-

Orland May Get A

$40,000 Church

The latest news that is causing a good deal of interest in Orland is the report that Orland will get a new $40,000 Catholic church. A wealthy Chicago lady is said to reported to have willed this amount to the local priest with the request it be used for church purposes and Orland has been selected as the place it is to be spent in. It is said plans for the edifice have already been drawn. The present church building is to be used for a parochial school.

Not All "Tuskers"

Tuskers are present only in the males of the Asiatic elephants and are only about half as large as those found in African elephants. Both sexes of African elephants have tusks, which contribute to the dwindling of the species, as the females are as liable as the males to be killed for the sake of the ivory.

Its Advantage

They were discussing the advantages of the various college courses.
"So you've decided on an art course instead of a scientific course?" inquired the girl. "Oh, yes," answered the youth, "it seemed the better course for me." Her next question was,
"Why?" and his reply to that was,
"Well, everybody says it's easier to forget."

Songs of Troubadours

There were several kinds of songs sung by the troubadours—the canzo-net, or love song; serenade, or evening song; aubade, or morning song; servante in praise of patrons, roundelay, or song with refrain or chorus; dance song accompanying the round dance, and the pastourelle, treating of Arcadian love.

The "Ozarks"

Ozark is a corruption of the French word aux arcs, and means "with bows," a term descriptive of the Indians who formerly inhabited the country.

Most Difficult Things in Life.
A Danish paper recently asked the readers to state what is the hardest thing in the world to do. It received many more replies than it had anticipated, some of which are as follows: To be a toe dancer if you weigh 200 pounds; to get back borrowed books to trim one's nails while wearing boxing gloves. Some of the readers took the question seriously and answered it seriously. One replied that to live without telling a lie was the most difficult of all.

Good Stenographers in Mokena High

That the pupils of the commercial class in Mokena High School will be excellent stenographers is shown by the almost perfect grades which they received in their last examination. The majority of the grades were in the high nineties, two of which grades were ninety-one. This examination was on the hardest lesson in the Gregg text book and then to receive almost perfect grades indicates that they are far above the average.

Considering the small amount of time they have for class and the meager equipment for commercial work, they are doing splendidly.

In most classes, there is a distinct difference in the work of the pupils, but it is difficult to say which of the students in the shorthand class exceeds the others.

They are doing as well in typing as in shorthand.

In view of the high rank of the Junior Class, no one ought to be sorry that the commercial course has been added to the high school.

Thumb Not "Finger"

Strictly speaking, the thumb should not be referred to as a finger and we have on each hand four fingers and a thumb. The term that refers to all five of the divisions of the hand is digit. However, the word "finger" has come to be used loosely in reference to the four digits and the thumb.

Suspensions About Wall Street and How They Arise

By FRANCIS H. SISON, President
Trust Company Division, American Bankers Association

WOULD-BE economists, political orators and the general public make frequent positive assertions about the functions of Wall Street without any realization of what constitutes Wall Street or what purpose it serves. Lack of knowledge breeds suspicion. Yet it is not difficult to understand the nature and function of Wall Street. Let us set down a few of the facts which account for the existence and nation-wide, as well as international, services of Wall Street.

F. H. Sison

There are 316 banks in New York with combined capital and surplus of about $1,400,000,000. Their deposits aggregate over $11,500,000,000, and during 1924 their total volume of business reached nearly $250,000,000,000. The New York Stock Exchange in 1925 sold 463,000,000 shares of stock and in 1924 $3,828,000,000 worth of bonds. Wall Street is the national credit and money market. It is just as essential that there be markets for money and for the facilitation of trade, industry and investment are upon a correspondingly ample scale. It is clear that these funds must be employed sanely, constructively and to the real service of the business community. Otherwise they would inevitably soon be withdrawn.

Huge Investments Help Farmers
These huge investment operations in Wall Street are of significance to the farmer. Much of the $10,000,000,000 invested in farm mortgages was advanced by Eastern financial institutions. In no sense is Wall Street's interest in agriculture local or sectional. The main function of New York financial institutions is to send money where it is most needed.

Another service rendered to agriculture by Wall Street is the purchase of Farm Loan bonds, Joint Stock Land Bank bonds and the debentures of the Intermediate Credit Banks. There is a total of $1,451,800,000 of this paper outstanding, of which New York banks took about one billion.

Wall Street loans to country banks are made at low rates, usually below 4½ per cent. The local banker's rates to his customers are adjusted to local conditions, which cannot justly be laid at the door of Wall Street. General financial service to other industries related to agriculture also helps the farmer substantially. Wall Street loans to the packers, railroads, millers and farm-machinery manufacturers to help them serve agriculture.

Wall Street is as necessary and serviceable in the handling of credit and capital as is the cold-storage plant in the handling of seasonal perishable products. The necessity of such a credit center in a country with a $60,000,000,000 annual business is obvious.

What the People Want
Every great international bank in New York maintains close relations with thousands of other banks in the United States and in every foreign country of any importance. The movements of commerce and investment are supported upon this interrelated system of domestic and foreign banks. Thus it comes about that the products of the farm, factory and mine are financed by these banks all the way from the producer to the foreign consumer.

Wall Street in the discharge of its true functions as the nation's reservoir of capital and credit includes the whole business community in its field of operations. Its control lies with the people. Their demands govern it, and their presence or absence from the market determines its trends. Wall Street prospers as farming and industry prosper. Its service is to the people of the whole country and, for them, to the people of other countries. It is the direct reflection of American agriculture, industry and commerce.—From the Country Gentleman.

Funds from every part of the country flow to New York, attracted by the greater opportunity for their profitable use found in this center. Thus the accumulations of deposits are large, and in turn the openings for the useful employment of these funds in thinking of buying, the chances are that he never would have bought it after he got the bank's report. Banks can get the record of any company issuing stock and if the company is not well financed, if it has not been paying dividends, if the officers of the company are not men with clean, honest records, the bank can find that out. The radio company that James invested in made a disgraceful failure a month after he bought his stock. If he had taken the trouble to find out something about it first, doubtless he would have had that money today.

"Well, Aunt, that may be true about the stock, but who in the world would anticipate thieves?"
"Anybody who reads the papers today knows that thieves are pretty active," said Aunt Emmy dryly. "Why ignore them? If James had kept his bonds in a safe place, at a bank, he would have had them yet. James has been careless, if not actually stupid. His bad luck is mostly James himself."—Anne B. Aymes.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY ON "BAD LUCK"

"The Brownes are the unluckiest people I ever saw, Aunt," remarked Emmy, as she and Aunt Emmy walked by their house. "They were just getting on their feet after James lost so much money in stocks. Mand told me only last week that he was putting his savings in government bonds now. Yesterday his office was robbed and the bonds stolen out of his desk. Five $100 bonds gone. It's the only money they have been able to save since he lost his savings in that radio stock."
"That certainly is bad luck, if you call it bad luck," commented Aunt Emmy. "I call it stupidity, myself."
"Stupidity? Why Aunt Emmy, how could James know that thieves would get in his office?" exclaimed Emmy. "It doesn't seem stupid to me."
"I don't want to be too hard on James, my child, but if he had only used ordinary precautions, he need not have lost what was for him a large amount of money on that radio stock and he surely need not have had those bonds stolen."
"Why Aunt, James isn't a mind reader or a fortune teller."
"No, of course he isn't. But neither is every successful business man a seer. Luck is ninety per cent common sense. If James had gone to his banker and asked him to look up the radio company whose stock he was

Just around the Corner

EVEN big-city folks must have their "neighborhood stores"! Most of them would no more think of going down town to fight their way through the crowds in search of a roast for dinner than they would of walking to the factory to get a pair of shoes.

City women know that their neighborhood stores can supply them just what they want—and that, in most cases, the service is more alert and friendly.

The same thing is true of this "neighborhood". Our merchants—the men whose ads you read in this paper—are in position to furnish your home with the best and most popular brands of goods. Not only can they save you money, but they gladly relieve you of a lot of worry and loss of time.

OAK LAWN

OAK LAWN STANDARD SCHOOL
Wiley Simmons, Prin.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Brien visited our school on Thursday Feb. 11. They arrived too late for the Lincoln exercises but witnessed our valentine party and our two industrial classes.

Mrs. O'Brien visited the girl's sewing class while Mr. O'Brien took great interest in the boy's manual training shop. The boys and girls are taking great interest in these outside school activities and we are sure that they are spending their spare time at something quite worth while.

We are pleased to note the progress being made by our school chorus, harmonica band, and song-phone band. We wish you could hear them. All 3 organizations will present numbers on our Spring entertainment program which will be held at the school about the last of March. Watch for the date. Our achievement club held its regular monthly meeting on Friday afternoon Feb. 19th. The monthly business was transacted after which the entertainment committee took charge. The entertainment consisted of "A Lesson About Washington" presented by the pupils of the upper grades. Mrs. Ott, Mrs. Yetter, and Mr. Wm. Harnew were visitors. The Washington exercise was both interesting and instructive to all who were present. Following the exercises, we were all greatly shocked to hear of the sudden and tragic death of our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Brien, who had paid our school such a pleasant visit only a few days ago. All their relatives and children have our sincere sympathy. We have all lost two good citizens, but they leave pleasant memories.

Thirteen of our lower and intermediate grade pupils received Palmer buttons as awards for progress in the Palmer method of handwriting. Their papers were sent to the Palmer Company in Chicago, and were graded by the penmanship teachers of that company. Of course we are proud of their achievement.

Mr. Schward, principal of the Grammar school of Porter, Ind., for the past five years, but now of Chicago has been engaged as the new principal of Oak Lawn Public School, taking the place of the late Miss Koelle.

Miss Dorothy Elvidge broke both limbs and feet a week ago Sunday morning when going down the Ski slide at Palos Park. The toboggan on which she and her brothers were on went out of the track and in trying to save them she was injured.

Miss Elvidge is in Burnside hospital.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The Sunday morning Service at 11 o'clock is proving very popular. Every one is interested in the topic of Salvation which is proving to be a much larger subject than can be finished in a series of six sermons.

Rev. Chester Mardis of Evanston who spoke at the midweek service congratulated people of this day and age for coming to a common understanding in matters of religion. Sectarian lines are being broken down and universal brotherhood set up thru out our American towns and villages.

The Morgan Park Congregational Young People gave a very interesting program to our Young People. A trio consisting of the three Dargamon Sisters was the special feature. They played the cello, violin and piano, each one being an artist with her particular instrument, beside also being accomplished vocalists. After the entertainment, refreshments were served.

The primary and beginners department of the church school is planning a pretty Easter program.

The Girls Reserve group will meet with Lois and Aline Wilson Friday.

Owing to cloudy weather the Boys Study Club postponed their trip to this past Friday. The observatory had more attraction than any boy's imagination ever imagined.

The Camp Fire Girls, under the leadership of Miss Ruth Utt, entertained their mothers in the church parlors last Monday evening. There were eats and everything which contributed to a good time.

SUFFERED MANY YEARS WITH FEMALE TROUBLE
PE-RU-NA
LIKE A GIFT FROM HEAVEN

Mrs. Katie Scheffel,
R. F. D. No. 5, Lowell, Ohio

"I have been suffering for years with female trouble. Was operated on five years ago. It relieved me some but I did not regain my strength. Two years later was taken sick and bedfast several months. I treated a long while without much relief. I was discouraged, my mind affected, so nervous I could neither eat or sleep and unable to do anything.

We tried several doctors but one after another gave up my case as hopeless. Finally a good friend advised me to try Pe-ru-na. I did. It relieved me almost immediately. Your medical department said I was suffering from chronic catarrh of the system. I began taking your medicine in March, 1914, and continued until August. I took ten bottles of Pe-ru-na and three bottles of Man-a-lin and felt like a new person. Your medicine seemed like a gift from Heaven. It was like coming from darkness into light.

We have used your medicine since for coughs, colds and grip with good results. We will always keep it on hand. I weigh twenty-five pounds more than I ever did, eat and sleep well and can do a good day's work. Everybody says I look fine. Even the doctors are surprised. I cannot thank you enough and will always recommend Pe-ru-na to sufferers from catarrh."

MRS. KATIE SCHEFFEL,
R. F. D. No. 5, Lowell, O.

Mrs. Scheffel is only one of many thousand women in the world, who owe their present health to Pe-ru-na. The record of this medicine is a proud one as Pe-ru-na has held the confidence of both sexes for fifty years or more.

If your trouble is due to a catarrhal inflammation in any organ or part of the body, do like Mrs. Scheffel. Try Pe-ru-na. Insist upon having the original and reliable remedy for catarrhal conditions. You won't be sorry.

A CLOSE CALL

SYNOPSIS.—Traveling by canoe on the Mississippi, on his way to Biloxi, in the early days of the settlement of Louisiana, William Brampton, English spy, known to the Indians and settlers as the "White Indian," sees a Natchez Indian post a declaration of war against the French. For his own purposes, he hastens to Biloxi to carry the news to Bienville, French governor. Brampton meets an old friend, Joe Labrador, Indian half-breed, who warns him Bienville has threatened to hang him as a spy. Brampton refuses to turn back. He falls in with Jules and Basile Mattor, on their way to Biloxi to secure wives from a ship, the Maire, bringing women from France. At Biloxi Brampton protects a woman from a sergeant's brutality. She tells him she is Claire Dahlskaar, plucked up in a raid in Paris. Evidently well bred and educated, she is a mystery to Brampton. He intervenes to prevent a man, English, known as "Old Six Fingers," following her to New Orleans. A Frenchman, Francois Narbonne, slightly demented by stories he has heard of the riches of the New World, introduces himself. Bienville accuses Brampton of treachery, but the latter secures a respite from death by revealing the Natchez declaration of war. He is to await the arrival of a former companion, Damaon the Fox, who will exonerate or condemn him. Damaon has documents proving Brampton an English spy. Brampton receives a message from Claire begging him to help her reach the English settlements.

Then to me: "Do you ship with us?"

"You two are free to go and come as you will. I cannot go with you. I am sorry. If you will ask for one Jean Dumouy, Monsieur du Pratz's boatman, you can bargain with him to take you to Bayou St. Jean, and from there you can easily make the settlement."

"Monsieur Brampton is very polite," sighed Narbonne. "I had hoped for your gracious company. Come, old rat, we must find this boatman."

They started toward the fort, with the women making their eager to beg a passage to New Orleans, which I believe they thought to be a miniature Paris. Narbonne waved them aside and they fastened upon Six Fingers, and while the old pirate was busy in fighting them off the Frenchman returned swiftly to my side and asked:

"Mademoiselle in black? She has gone?"

"To la Nouvelle Orleans," I informed him. "What do you know of her?" "Only that I pity her. Only that she is alone in the world and very sad. Only that she is in great fear of my brother, the corsair. He keeps with me, thinking I am interested in her. I keep with him that he may not find her first and add to her fright. What a game! I hope to see him die, and I will defend him from harm until I learn why the little sad one is afraid of him. I regret. But if monsieur cannot go, then he cannot."

This last was for Six Fingers' benefit as he had now got rid of the women and ran back with his ears pricked to learn what we were discussing.

"Impossible, monsieur; but I wish you well in your endeavors," I said. And with a sweep of his cap the eccentric fellow took his departure and went to find Dumouy.

Narbonne might be mad, but there was no doubting the kindly qualities of his heart. I slowly made for the fort, pausing at the entrance to reconnoiter the square. It was now quite dark. On the left and next to the gate was the governor's quarters, and through an open window came the sound of his measured voice. A candle was lighted, and I saw Narbonne standing by the window.

Passing on to the magazine and guardhouse on the right and at the back of the enclosure I halted before a small office adjoining the magazine, in which burned a candle. The room was empty, and I entered, and found what I was looking for—writing material.

Those few soldiers who were not on duty were gambling and gossiping in their barracks. The lighted candle evidenced the return of the governor, or his superintendent; and I made haste to finish my business. For a variety of reasons I could not explain my predicament, and had to content myself with saying:

"Mademoiselle Claire Dahlskaar: There is much danger, and yet there is no insurmountable obstacle for a young woman desiring to travel through this country. At present I am detained here. I hope to leave very soon, when my best service will be at your command. I may arrive at New Orleans during the night. I may send word by a friend, whose passport shall be the words 'The White Indian,' and he will bring you to me. It will be necessary for me to start north immediately. I respectfully direct your attention to the Indian woman's dress, which is adapted to woods and river-travel. I remain your respectful servant—Wm. Brampton."

As I was hurriedly rereading it I became conscious of being watched.

As I sat there with the message before me I knew some one was behind me.

Picking up the quill I dipped it in ink and began writing:

"To his excellency, Monsieur Philippe de Vaudreuil, Governor of Canada."

"Monsieur: I find myself most unjustly accused of serving the interest of the English colonies to the hurt of France. You, your excellency, who have been so well acquainted with my activities, and who, I flatter myself, have always given me favorable consideration in estimating—"

"That paper, if you please, Monsieur Brampton," rang out the cold voice of Bienville.

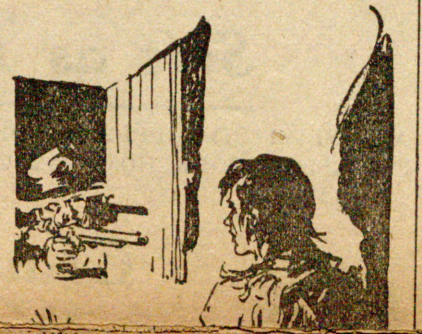

With assumed surprise I wheeled about. The muzzle of a flintlock pistol of large bore was resting on the sill of the window, and behind it was the stern, implacable and suspicious countenance of the governor. As I twisted to face the window my body masked the table. My hand gathered up the message to the young woman and, as I brought up my foot, shoved it inside my moccasin.

"Why—why, your excellency! This is intolerable. You aim weapons at me! I protest—"

"Enough, Monsieur Brampton!" sharply interrupted the governor. "Where his gracious majesty's affairs are involved I cannot stand on the punctilios of courtesy. Both hands where I can see them. Sergeant, bring me what he has been writing."

"I have it, your excellency; all that he has written," said the sergeant.

The pistol vanished, and Bienville entered the small office and without a glance at me took the sheet of paper and held it to the candle-light. I frowned and waited; and in less than a minute I had the satisfaction of seeing his lips pursed in chagrin.

"That Paper, If You Please, Monsieur Brampton," Rang Out the Cold Voice of Bienville.

Replacing the paper on the table, he said:

"You may go, sergeant."

After Suarez had departed the governor said to me:

"It was a disagreeable necessity. Had you come to my quarters to do your writing my suspicions might not have been aroused. But, entering here, as if to escape espionage—"

He ceased speaking and drummed his fingers on the table, having approached as near to an apology as he cared to do.

"But what good could such a memorial do you? Long before it could be delivered and answered I should have passed on your case. In no event does Monsieur Vaudreuil have jurisdiction over Biloxi. If innocent, you will have long to wait. If guilty, your petition could help you none."

"Your excellency is in the right of it, as you always are," I sighed; and I began feeding the petition into the candle.

"That is finished," he said. "If you will dine with me we shall be served at once."

I rose and bowed and stood aside for him to precede me through the door. I feared I should have no opportunity of speaking to Narbonne; but as we walked toward the governor's quarters I heard the well-known voice raised in a spirited harangue, the audience being a group of grinning soldiers at the gate. Dumouy and his companion were just outside the gate and impatient to be off.

That Narbonne and Six Fingers had struck their bargain was shown by the boatmen's lingering, although in great impatience. Narbonne glimpsed me on the edge of the circle and abruptly ended his talk and pressed forward to greet me. Bienville stood a few paces ahead of me; and I kicked up my foot and retrieved the message and crumpled it in my hand.

"I regret I shall not have your company, monsieur," he cried.

"Monsieur Narbonne, I am always ready to do you a service," I heartily replied, "and at some other time it may be my good fortune to have you command me."

And I extended my hand and gave him a warm English handclasp. I felt his hand jerk as the wad of paper pressed into the palm. Undoubtedly the fellow was mad, and yet on subjects apart from the Mississippi country he could be sane enough. My nerves ceased jumping as I felt him palming the paper.

"It has been good to meet you, monsieur," he somewhat stiffly returned. "Till we meet again at my plantation. I shall go in much for silkworms, using the Indian girls and children for the delicate task of caring for the worms."

And with one of his exaggerated bows, he was backing toward the sullen pirate and the impatient boatman.

Sieur de Bienville was charming. He referred in no way to my dubious position, and he extended to me those little attentions that are so natural in his race, and which, I am forced to believe, must spring from an innate kindness of heart. Only once was my personal standing involved in our table talk, and that when I ventured to ask:

"Is there any objection to my visiting Mobile while waiting for Damaon's report?"

"Be patient a bit, and perhaps we can go there together." (Meaning, of course, if Damaon gave me a clean slate.)

His manner discouraged further requests, and as if to avoid a recurrence of the subject he entered on a lively discourse upon the English and the French manner of occupying a country. "The priest was the first of the French to visit aborigines and the trader was first of my people," he said. This led him into warm praise of the Jesuits, whom he greatly admired, although he readily admitted they never exercised the same influence over the lower river Indians as they did over the Canadian.

In referring to Father Davion, driven in by the Tunicas, and to Father Poucault, killed by the Koroas, he revealed the inexorable side of his nature, his "blood for blood" judgments, by reminding me with much relish how he paid liberal rewards for the murderers' scalps. It was his one strong point in his management of the Indian tribes, for which they knew him as the "Iron Hand." As blood for blood was the aboriginal point of view the policy always had their respect even when demanding toll.

He sneered at Cadillac for not suspecting that the silver found in the lake country was carried there from Mexico; and in the next breath he expressed absolute confidence in all of Law's plans. He pictured Law finding a bankrupt empire, an unpaid army and a starving peasantry, with the billets d'etat going to a discount of seventy per cent, and then boasted of how the magician had eliminated, or changed these evils. Now the peasants could make fortunes. Luxuries were within the reach of all who would reach for them, regardless of former poverty. France was feverishly prosperous. Paris was the center of the world.

And yet he was firm in his conviction that the future of Louisiana lay in agriculture, not in mines; and he insisted that the colonists should be selected with this thought in view.

I refused a bed in his quarters, for I was his prisoner. Nor did I care to be too much under his thumb should I discover an opportunity of escaping. So, after his courteous good night, I went to the barracks, where Sergeant Suarez suddenly showed me a bunk. Very soon I decided my outdoor life had unfitted me for sleeping under cover. I took my robes and went outside and arranged my bed under the oaks. As I lay down three figures passed me and took up positions between me and the shore, the woods to the north and the woods to the west. Doubtless there were sharp eyes between me and the woods at the east.

This espionage was extremely irritating. It accented the danger of my being in Biloxi when Damaon the Fox arrived. My report on Canada, so idly confided to the Fox, was my death warrant. That one slip left me powerless to face the fellow down did he return. How completely he had deceived me was shown by my trusting the data to his care.

The danger from the Fox had seemed rather remote until the sentinels surrounded me that night; then it closed about me and smothered me, and I remained awake for hours trying to arrive at some sensible plan for leaving Biloxi and reaching New Orleans and keeping my appointment with the girl. When the sun rose I had advanced a single step. I would give the impression I was interested in Pensacola. That would be my logical haven if I tried to escape.

That morning I simulated cunning in my way of questioning different men about Pensacola, the time it took to make the port, and the like. Having sown this seed I visited the magazine office when it was empty, and studied the wall-maps as if wishing to refresh my recollection. Finishing there, I returned to the shore and talked with a fellow who owned a small vessel called a flute. I asked him if he ever made Pensacola in his little craft. In the background I saw the sergeant glaring at us.

I must have a boat to take me to Pontchartrain. It was necessary that I escape under cover of night, leaving Bienville to believe I was making for Pensacola. I had informed mademoiselle that I would call for her, or send for her; and I intended to keep my word. Aside from this there were the Choctaws, whom Bienville would set on my trail if it was not believed I had departed in a boat.

I stuck close to the shore, sprawling on the sand, with Suarez or one of his men always in the middle distance, keeping watch. Toward sunset Bienville came hurrying down to the boats and accosted me, saying:

"Monsieur Brampton, I'm off for the island. Another ship come in. It's a h— of a case! A sick woman here—and she may have the plague—and no place to keep this new lot either here or out there. I go to see they are kept on the ship until I can arrange for them."

He paused, and I knew what he would say next, and I rubbed my head and stomach and groaned slightly.

"Touched by the sun? Are you ill?" he asked, not unkindly.

"Only a queer dizziness. Something of a pain in my vitals," I answered, making a face as some imaginary twinge of pain shot through me.

He bit his lip and hesitated, his brows perplexed. His intention of compelling my company was being replaced by another safeguard. He expressed his regret, turned toward Suarez and beckoned him to approach, at the same time walking to meet him. He spoke briefly to the sergeant, then hastened down to the shore and went aboard a sailing vessel.

Suarez walked to me and with a smirk said:

"His excellency's compliments to Monsieur Brampton, who is indisposed. Monsieur is advised to go to his excellency's quarters, take a stiff drink of brandy and lie down."

I rose and with unsteady steps walked with him toward the fort. As we advanced the fellow took more time to study my features—now screwed up in an expression of pain. His aplomb deserted him and he walked farther apart from me. He had no desire to catch the fever, and the moment I entered the living-room of the governor's house he hurriedly left me. I watched him give orders to two soldiers, who left the gate and took up positions closer to the house. They were reluctant to do this, as they had been enjoying the badinage of the women. Now I was confined and under guard. It must be this night or not at all.

I watched and waited while the night more snugly tucked its dark robes about the settlement. At last the monotony of the waning night, the creaking of the sentinels' armor, the sound of angry voices. At first I thought the men were quarreling, but after a bit it was plain they were complaining against some injustice.

"Messieurs, I thank you." Now I recognized the speaker as old Jules Mattor. His voice creaked with resentment. "His excellency is a just man, a good man. But these women in the bark-houses? They have no fever. Bah! I have lived here long enough and have seen enough of them die to know the fever."

"You waste your breath," growled a heavy voice. "The women stay here until his excellency returns. Then you can talk to him. You make my ears ache. If you go near the women's quarters you'll run into a musket ball weighing eight hundred grains. It will be bad for your digestion."

I slipped into the doorway with a robe over my shoulders. My scheme of escape was now stretching forth its tentacles like a devilish and seeking to embrace the Mattors among its requirements.

"Is Jules Mattor there? Do I hear Jules Mattor's voice?" I called out. "This is Monsieur Brampton. I have a chill. Have you had the fever? Would it be dangerous for you to come nearer so I may question you?"

"There is no danger. I laugh at the fever, monsieur," he cried, glad to escape from the gibes of the soldiers; and he ran toward me through the dusk, closely followed by Basile.

"And your son? Has he had it?" "Also the boy," he replied, halting before me. "Permit me to place my hand on monsieur's head."

"Say you are not sure. I have money for you. Hard money!" I whispered.

As hard as a weasel he was babbling:

"It is hard to tell, monsieur. In a short time, yes. For a certainty."

"I ate fish last evening. It may be that." I hopefully suggested, giving his hand a squeeze.

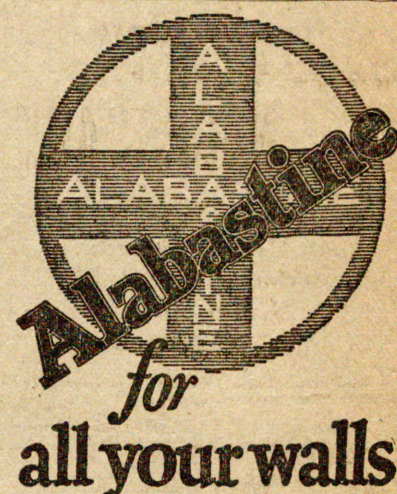

"Ah, those fish! Who knows? Then again it may be the fever."

Of course the hero has no fever. But will this scheme work?

Cause for Rejoicing

That optimists see only the cheerful side of events because it is their nature to do so, and not because they are the beneficiaries of constant good fortune, was illustrated by a mishap that befell a man noted for his buoyant spirits. A friend, calling at his office, found him laughing heartily. At his feet lay the fragments of a mirror, which he explained, he had just broken accidentally. "But why are you so merry about it?" the friend inquired. "Why don't you see," laughed the optimist; "it limits my bad luck to seven years."

GOOD HEALTH NECESSARY

Many Busy Women Owe Their Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught school, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing. Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Unionall factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it.

If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

(C. 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

IS ARTERIOSCLEROSIS HEREDITARY?

ONE of the great advantages of the large amount of public education on diseases that has been going on for nearly twenty-five years is that it is possible now to use terms that were formerly intelligible to doctors only but that are now understood by most intelligent laymen.

One of these is arteriosclerosis. Almost everybody knows today that this is a gradual hardening and stiffening of the blood vessels, especially the arteries, and that it is caused by the deposit of lime in the blood vessel walls, changing them from smooth, soft, flexible, elastic tubes into rough, hard and stiff vessels which break more easily than the normal vessels. The process is very much like the hardening and stiffening of a rubber tubing, which every one has noticed in old rubber tubes of gas pipes, fountain syringes, atomizers and other rubber appliances. It is found either as a cause or as a result in many forms of heart, kidney and liver diseases, in many cases of overweight and in almost all cases of extreme old age.

What is the reason for this difference in individuals and why do some people have hardened arteries in middle life while others may live to advanced years and still have soft flexible arteries? The increased frequency of heart and kidney diseases has stimulated interest in this question in recent years.

Is this tendency to hardening of the arteries due to individual habits or is it something which we each of us inherit from our parents? Many causes have been suspected, such as infections, overeating, excessive use of alcohol, tobacco or coffee, overwork and worry. Yet we find many people who have none of these bad habits who early develop hard arteries while many who have most or all of them never have it.

In a recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Doctor Martinson of Battle Creek reports a careful study of nearly a thousand persons which shows that children of parents who have had high blood pressure, apoplexy, kidney trouble, sick headaches, overweight, gout and asthma were much more likely to have early hardening of the arteries than persons whose parents had none of these troubles.

If you inherited good blood vessels from your parents thank God and keep them so. If one or both of your parents suffered from some of these afflictions you can overcome or delay the result by living simply, avoiding overeating, eating plenty of fruit and drinking plenty of pure water, avoiding constipation and trying to give your children better arteries than your parents gave you.

FIRES IN HOSPITALS

IF THERE is any place on earth where one ought to be safe from fire it is in a hospital. A person who is ill or who is recovering from an operation has enough to worry about without having any fear of fire in addition. By the same token, a well person is perhaps able to protect himself from fire under ordinary conditions. But how can an ill or disabled person be expected to escape from a burning building?

One would naturally suppose that every hospital in the country would be just as fire-proof as human skill could make it. Yet Mr. W. E. Mallallen, general manager of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, says in a recent issue of the Journal of Outdoor Life, that in 1922 and 1923 there were 850 fires in hospitals which destroyed property valued at $1,791,909. This is 425 a year or more than one every day.

There are about ten thousand hospitals of all kinds in this country which care for over a million people every year. The fire loss among hospitals each year is nearly a million dollars, which would be enough to build and equip several new hospitals.

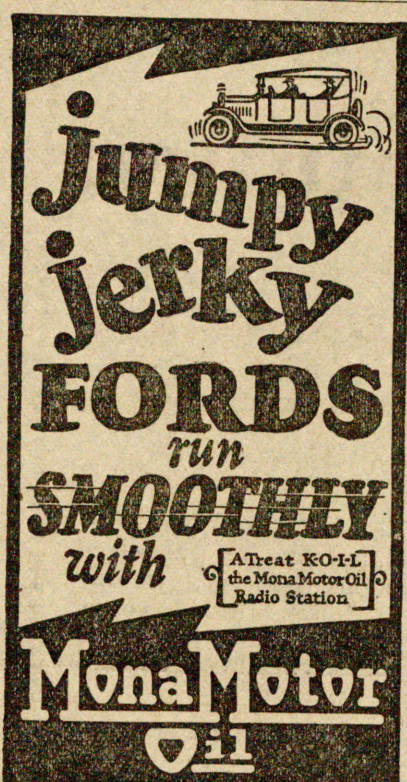

Most of these hospital fires could be prevented either by greater care in construction or better supervision in management. This is seen when we study Mr. Mallallen's chart showing the causes of these 850 hospital fires. Classified by the amount of financial loss caused by the fires, sparks on the roof resulted in damage to the amount of $194,039, nearly $200,000.

The second most expensive cause of fire is some defect in the heating plant. Stoves, furnaces, boilers, overheated stacks caused damages of $156,000. These defects of either installation or operation are also clearly preventable.

Next comes spontaneous combustion. This is generally the result of allowing waste, rubbish and trash of all kinds to accumulate, generally in dark corners. This is always avoidable and due to poor management and untidy surroundings. But it destroyed $95,000 worth of hospital property just the same.

Defective chimneys and flues cost $86,000. Matches and smoking burned up $78,000 worth of hospital property and gas explosions cost $56,000.

Fire is bad enough anywhere. In a hospital it should be impossible.

Why Am I Where I Am?

By REV. R. H. GLOVER, M. D.
Director of Missionary Course, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?—Esther 4:14.

The book of Esther tells the story of a captive race, the Jews, condemned to death through the machinations of a malicious enemy, and then of their remarkable deliverance through the instrumentality of a young woman named Esther.

And who was Esther? By birth she herself belonged to this condemned race. But by royal favor she had been exalted to the high position of queen. The one relation fitted her to sympathize with the unfortunate race; the other afforded her a unique opportunity to intervene for their rescue.

The critical situation brings Esther suddenly up against the greatest decision of her life. She cannot evade it. What will she do?

On the one hand, she calls to mind the good fortune that is hers—youth, beauty, riches, and high position with all its opportunity for pleasure and indulgence. Has she not a right to enjoy all these good things? Have they not come to her honestly and through the direct favor of God? Why, then, should she give them up and even risk her very life by identifying herself with her condemned people?

But, on the other hand, it is all too clear that apart from her there is no means of averting the nation's doom. Unless she bestirs herself they must all miserably perish.

All these considerations Esther ponders deeply. She asks herself the question, "Why have I been placed in the position of favor I occupy? Is it merely for my own advantage, or has God put me here for a higher purpose—to meet this emergency which has befallen my people?"

In short, Esther faces an age-long question: Will she interpret her life in terms of selfish privilege or of opportunity to serve others? Will she use her talents, her resources, for personal gratification or yield them to God for wider, nobler ends?

Her decision is reached, not hastily or impulsively, but calmly and deliberately—and on the right side. And so, committing herself to His guidance and care, this noble maiden throws herself into the breach, regardless of results to herself, and SAVES A NATION.

The application of this touching story is not far to seek. The story is a missionary parable. For are there not races today, both Jew and Gentile, that through the malicious working of man's wicked adversary are lying under condemnation of death and facing a swiftly approaching doom?

And does not our position as Christians parallel that of Esther in that while by nature we belong to a condemned race, yet by grace we have been lifted into kingly fellowship, and thus given the privilege of pleading with God for our fellow men and of carrying to them a message of royal mercy and deliverance?

Think of our lot in this God-favored land as contrasted with that of heathen nations today—how we enjoy material blessings and comforts, social and intellectual advantages, and a thousand features that sweeten and enrich our lives, while multitudes yonder in heathenland pine in squalor, ignorance and moral pollution.

Think, moreover, of the contrasted spiritual lots—WE blessed with pardon, peace, comfort and eternal hope, through the knowledge of the Savior; THEY enslaved by sin and superstition, haunted by fear, "having no hope and without God in the world."

Have we paused to consider why we have thus been so favored above others? Shall we take it all simply as a matter of course and go on selfishly enjoying our "good things," or shall we humbly seek to find out what purpose God may have in it all? The question faces us no less than Esther: "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

Consider for a moment what it would mean if the tables were turned and you were in the place of the heathen. Try to imagine what life would be, even for a single day, devoid of every vestige of the knowledge of the Christ who fills our hearts with peace and joy and hope. And then ask yourself the question: "Am I doing as much for them as I should wish and expect them to do for me, if I were where they are and they were where I am?"

We want you to make this test

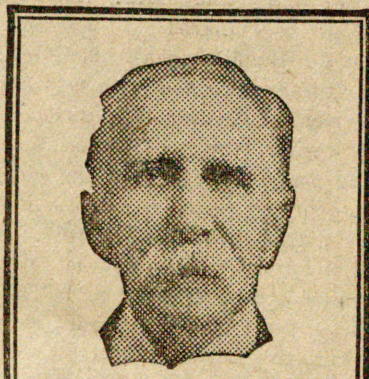

We want every weak, puny, fagged-out man and woman in America to make this test: buy one bottle of Tanlac at your druggist's, take it according to directions for one week and see how quickly you get started back to full strength and vigor.

We know what we are talking about. Tanlac has helped millions. In our files are more than 100,000 letters of praise from grateful users.

Don't confuse Tanlac with ordinary patent nostrums. It is Nature's own tonic and builder, compounded from roots, barks, and herbs that we gather at great expense from the four corners of the earth.

Tanlac goes straight to the seat of your trouble; cleanses and purifies the blood stream; puts your digestion in proper shape. First thing you know you have an appetite like a starved child. You rest at night and your whole body begins to feel the stir of strength and energy.

Don't you be discouraged. Don't put off testing Tanlac another day. Get a bottle now and in a week you should notice signs of real improvement. Then you
